GREAT QUESTION

Rather than term "sharpen my trading skills" I would use the term "dull my pain threshold." Eventually traders learn that there is no such thing as optimal trading rules and that following imperfect rules is better and having no rules at all.

Very interesting point Peter!

What sources did you use over the years to sharpen your trading skills? And I don't mean technical analysis. How did you get the balls to say "I will pull the trigger here" "I will close my position here" etc
